A: There is an activeX designer for crystal report, but not for the runtime version 8.5. The best way is to upgrade your CR runtime to 8.5. You can follow these steps to upgrade your runtime. First, download your CR runtime from Here. Second, extract the dll files from the zip file. Third, go to your CR runtime installation folder and open the registry editor and make sure that you have a key there with a name of "CRRuntimeReg.dll". Under that key, change the value to this, and your runtime version CRRuntimeReg.Version=<ver 4>. Now copy that new registry file with a new name of and make sure that you move it to this folder C:\Program Files\CrystalDecisions\CrystalReports\Engine\8.5\runtimes. And finally, install the CR runtime again. A new installer will be there with a name of "CRRuntimeSetup.exe". And when you try to run the CR runtime, this installer will detect the new registry file and it will do the job. Modulation of guinea pig inferior mesenteric vein and femoral artery responses to bradykinin by d-Phe7-bradykinin. The contribution of a bradykinin receptor subtype to the in vivo and in vitro vascular actions of bradykinin (BK) was examined in the guinea pig inferior mesenteric vein (IV) and femoral artery (FA). In the IV, d-Phe7-BK antagonized BK-induced contractions with an ID50 of 0.05 nM. In the FA, d-Phe7-BK failed to affect basal tone but reduced the contractile response to BK in a competitive manner with an ID50 of 0.3 nM. In the IV but not in the FA, the B2 antagonist HOE-140 antagonized the BK-induced contraction. In the IV, BK caused an initial transient increase in contractile force followed by a sustained decrease in tone. In contrast, BK induced a sustained increase in tone in the FA which was not affected by HOE-140. In the IV but not in the FA, the B1 antagonist R-954 was approximately 4-fold more potent than HOE-140. 82157476af
